PITTSBURGH, PA June 2, 2009 – My Payment Network, Inc., the leader in PreK-12 eCommerce payment solutions, today announced that the company is now offering payment services in Canada with the launch of its first Canadian school district. My Payment Network has lead electronic payment solutions for the PreK-12 market in the US market for three years, and is both used as a “standalone solution” and widely integrated into the key administrative solutions utilized by schools.

“We are thrilled to take our school payment expertise to Canada and now serve all of North America,” said David Dunaway, CEO of My Payment Network. “Several of our distribution partners are Canadian companies. They have strong market adoption in Canada and have been eager to roll-out My Payment Network’s services in their own country.”

My Payment Network will be deploying electronic payment services to more than 60 districts in Canada in the next few months. These are districts which have already contracted for the service directly with My Payment Network or one of its OEM distribution partners.
